WORLD'S GREAT MERCHANT.

Marshall Field, of Chicago, Expires in New York.

WAS WORTH $200,000,000.

Brave Fight Against Disease
Despite His Seventy Years.

New York, Jan. 16.—Marshall Field, of Chicago, millionaire merchant and a leader in the dry goods trade of the world, died at the Holland House in this city at 4 o'clock this afternoon after an illness extending over more than a week, beginning with a bad cold and developing quickly into pneumonia which affected both lungs. Mr. Field, although 70 years of age, made a fight against the disease which impressed the attending physicians as being braver and stronger than would have been expected of a man many years his junior.

Mrs. Field and other members of the family were with him when he lapsed into the period of unconsciousness which ended in death.

Wonderful Success.

Chicago, Jan. 16.—Marshall Field was without question the greatest and most successful merchant of his generation and he was one of the world's richest men, his wealth being estimated at anything from $100,000,000 to $200,000,000. He was a native of Conway, Mass., where he was born in 1835. His father was a farmer and Mr. Field obtained his education in the public schools of Conway. At the age of 17 he became a clerk in a general country store in Pittsfield, Mass., where he remained for four years. He came to Chicago in 1856 and began his career in this city as clerk in the wholesale dry goods establishment of Colley, Wadsworth & Co. During the four years he remained with this house he showed marked commercial ability and in 1860 he was given a partnership. The late Levi Z. Leiter was also connected with the firm, and in 1865 the two young men withdrew and, in company with Potter Palmer, they organized the firm of Field, Palmer & Leiter, which continued until 1867, when Mr. Palmer withdrew and the firm became Field, Leiter & Co. This continued until 1881, when Mr. Leiter retired and the firm became known as Marshall Field & Co., as it is today. The house forged to the front very rapidly and it is now the largest enterprise of its kind in the world, having numerous branches throughout Europe and Asia.

The greatest merchant in the world was a slender man of medium height. When he looked up his face was kindly and the clear gray eyes shot keen, penetrating glances out from under the shaggy eyebrows. The gray hair was sparse around the forehead, and the heavy mustache was perfectly white. His presence was impressive; he was dignified but not severe; alert but seemingly so strong but sympathetic, business-like but considerate of the feelings of others. These were said to be the secrets of his success. He never gave a note; he never bought stock on margins; he never borrowed; he bought for cash and never gave over sixty days' credit. Mr. Field's home in Prairie avenue, near Twentieth street, is massive, but unostentatious.

In politics he never interfered, although he was always ready to aid with time and money any movement looking towards better National and municipal government. He was several times offered the second place on the ticket, but refused to accept it.

Mr. Field was twice married, his first wife having died several years ago. Mr. Field left one child, Ethel, now married and residing in Leamington, England. Marshall Field, Jr., accidentally shot himself at his home in this city Nov. 22, 1905, and died five days later. Sept. 5, 1905, Mr. Field was married in London, England, to Mrs. Caton, the widow of Arthur Caton, of this city.

NEW CLUB ORGANIZED

Composed of About Thirty Young Men of the City.

NAME NOT DECIDED ON.

Suite of Handsome Rooms
in Cooper Block Rented.

A new social society was organized last Tuesday night. This club is the successor of the old Kenton Club, and, including about seventeen of the late Kenton Club, the organization now numbers thirty or more.

Officers were chosen as follows: Lawson Flack, President. David Morgan, Vice Pres. Carleton Galbreath, Sec. & Treas. Directors: Guy Starling, J. D. Russell, Jr., and John Harvey.

The selection of a name was deferred until the next meeting.

The Club has rented a suite of rooms in the Cooper block on Main street and a committee will begin at once making necessary changes and fitting up the rooms in handsome style.

The furniture of the old Kenton Club has been purchased and no pains will be spared to make the home of the club all that can be desired. A bath room, reading room and lounging room will be furnished and the young men will have a cozy place where they can enjoy a social hour or two at any time they feel inclined.

At the next meeting a constitution and by-laws, as well as a name, will be presented and adopted. New names will be presented for membership and it is expected that the existence of the club will begin with a membership roll of about fifty.

WANTS DIVORCE.

Plaintiff Sues for Legal Separation from Young Wife

Geo. W. St. John vs. Verna St. John, is the style of a suit for divorce filed here this week. The plaintiff states that they were married in Stewart County, Tenn., in January, 1903, but came at once to this State and lived together until May the same year, at which time defendant left plaintiff and returned to Tennessee, where she remained until about two months ago, when she moved to Trigg county. Plaintiff further states that he treated the defendant well and provided for her, but she stated to him that she made a mistake in marrying him and did not nor could not love him, and therefore could not live with him, and that she would not live with a man she could not love and respect as a husband. The defendant was only seventeen years old when she married.

WANT NEW ROUTE.

Church Hill People Want Additional Rural Route.

A movement is on foot to secure another Rural Route south of town to serve the people living on the cross roads about Church Hill. The papers have been forwarded outlining the territory covered. Mr. Jas. A. Browning has the matter in hand. The route will be known as Hopkinsville No. 7.

Minus Five Bales of Hay.

A thief stole five bales of hay from the stable of Mr. Jas. K. Hooser last Friday night. Though Mr. Hooser may have some idea as to whom the thief was he is afraid the hay has been about consumed by this time and he will be unable to identify it.

"DEATH OR VICTORY"

WAR-CRY OF THE REVOLUTIONISTS OF RUSSIA.

Type of Men Who Are at the Present Time in Open and Deadly Conflict with the Soldiers of the Czar.

At the present writing the revolution in Russia is confined to certain classes of people found in the cities. The peasantry is not involved and will not be unless the revolutionary spirit spreads. The large numbers of men employed on the state railroads and in the administrative and other branches of the official service, and those engaged in the commercial pursuits are the classes who are defying the soldiers and failing in such large numbers in consequence.

The bureaucracy. To be sure, like most of the army, supports the state more or less loyally, but the smaller elements, the intellectuals and all those working in the poorly paid employments are the very bone and sinew of the revolutionary forces.

One of the most familiar types in the streets of St. Petersburg is the gentleman with his uniform of dark green with fittings of yellow. The ordinary gentleman of the kind above here is likely to be as little polite to foreigners as he is to his own countrymen, who regard him with hatred when they are not conversant with the same political faith that maintains him.

Among the revolutionists there are large numbers of Jews, and their thrust in an appeal to the Russian proletariat recently published in the "European" published in Paris, have announced "Death or Victory" as their warcry. They declare that the longest of revolutions has at length broken upon Russia; that a bloody and pitiless war is to be waged; that the cause of liberty is in danger; but they declare that the air of liberty has been at last breathed by the people and that they are sure of success. To quote:

"The tempo of a great revolution has burst forth in Russia and is sweeping from one end of the country to the other. Its majestic course is followed by a sanguinary and pitiless civil war, such as has been stirred up by the violence of blind reactionaries operating in a country which for centuries has struggled in the iron grip of autocracy."

The party of reaction are mobilizing their forces. The expiring regime has allied itself with the refuse of society. The government organizations and these blind reactionaries, who, worthy of their instigators, are bent on a savage and murderous struggle."

A vivid general description is given of the cruel massacres attributed to the "brute" Trotsky, as a leading French journal styles him. In the words of the appeal:

"The roar of musketry resounds in the streets of Russian cities. Victims without number heave the soil. Blood flows in torrents. Charism once more has recourse to its favorite instrument of government. The massacres of Jews are carried on to such an extent that all the crimes of czarism in the past divide into insignificance and are eclipsed by these new excesses of ferocity. The 'Black Gang,' protected by the troops, encouraged by the authorities, under the supreme direction of Trotsky, systematically slaughter in cold blood the Jewish population of Russia. The Jewish quarters in many cities are totally devastated. Cities are in flames. Anarchy and terror reign everywhere. The cause of liberty is imperiled."

The revolutionary activity of the Jewish proletariat is next dwelt upon. The revolution, indeed, the appeal continues, has actually come and the revolutionists are confident of success. They invite others to join their desperado resolve, "Death or Victory." The central committee of the Bund signs the proclamation, which concludes:

"The hour of revolution has struck. We catch a glimpse of victory—perhaps it may be, but still victory. The dawn of a new life has come. We have breathed the air of liberty, and what we have won by the sacrifice of thousands of our nation, we know how we defend and keep."

"Our warcry is 'Death or Victory.' We are confident of victory, we have won by our coming triumph, and we appeal to all who, like ourselves, thirst for liberty: we invite them to come to our assistance in this hour of trial."

NO AILING WOMEN.

A Little Sound Advice Will Help Many a Sufferer in Hopkinsville.

No woman can be healthy and well if the kidneys are sick. Poisons that pass off in the urine when the kidneys are well are retained in the body when the kidneys are sick. Kidneys and bladder get inflamed or swollen, crowding the delicate female organs nearby and sometimes displacing them. This is the true cause of many bearing-down pains, lameness, backache, sideache, etc. Urine poisoning also causes headache, dizzy spells, languor, nervousness and rheumatic pain.

When suffering, try Doan's Kidney Pills, the remedy that cures sick kidneys. You will get better as the kidneys get better, and health will return when the kidneys are well. Let a Hopkinsville woman tell you about Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. W. H. Robb, wife of W. H. Robb, machinist, employed at the Forbes & Co.'s wagon works, and residing at 1029 High St., says: 'I hardly know what it was to be free from an aching back and the irregular action of the kidneys caused at the same time other symptoms which were distressing and often expiring. I read about Doan's Kidney Pills and the symptoms which it was claimed it would cure seemed so much like mine that I had my husband get a box at Thomas & Trahern's drug store. I found that they gave me almost immediate relief and continued taking them for some time. They did me more good than all the kidney medicine I had ever taken put together and the results of the treatment justify me in subscribing my name to a hearty endorsement of your remedy.'

For sale by all dealers. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Mayor Harris, of Henderson, has put a close lid on the sloods.

Dangers of a Cold and How to Avoid Them.

More fatalities have their origin in or result from a cold than from any other cause. This fact alone should make people more careful as there is no danger whatever from a cold when properly treated in the beginning. For many years Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been recognized as the most prompt and effectual medicine in use for this disease. It acts on nature's plan, loosens the cough, relieves the lungs, soothes the secretions and aids nature in restoring the system to a healthful condition. Sold by L. L. Elgin and Anderson & Fowler, the up-to-date druggists at Hopkinsville.

Mrs. A. T. Beall has 45 hens that laid 3,677 eggs last year.

How to Prevent Bilious Attacks.

One who is subject to bilious attacks will notice that for a day or more before the attack he is not hungry at meal times and feels dull after eating. A dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets when these first symptoms appear will ward off the attack. They are for sale by L. L. Elgin and Anderson & Fowler, the up-to-date druggists at Hopkinsville.

WILL GODFREY'S LAST LEAP.

It was a sultry afternoon in the middle of August. The hot air, which had a slight haze, hung like a transparent curtain of light and heat. The couch on which Will Godfrey had lain ever since his hunting accident in the spring had a view of a flower garden richly decked with scarlet and gold, and beyond it of the sun-scorched park, where oaks, elms and chestnuts spread great branches, clad in the timeless foliage of late summer. The deer were huddled together in the shade; there was little sign of stirring life, all nature seemed asleep.

The doctor was sitting near Will. His eyes at the present moment were so full of sorrow that he dared not raise them. There had been a consultation that morning with a great London surgeon, and the result was supposed to be favorable—life might be prolonged under certain conditions.

Will was a man of almost gigantic build. He looked like Goliath laid low. Goliath dying by inches instead of by one swift stroke from his own sword.

"How long will this go on, doctor?" he said abruptly, looking at his friend with great wistful eyes. The doctor did not speak for a moment. He raised his eyes; but not to his patient's face; they wandered round the room, the walls of which were full of pictures of hunting scenes.

There was a certain monotony about the subject—horses everywhere in various attitudes. In front of the couch, just on a level with Will's eyes, was the Derby. A little further on to the left was another picture of an accident in the hunting field—a man lying on his back with his neck broken and a horse standing over him.

"How long will this go on?" he repeated, insistently.

"It may be for months—even for years. You are suffering from creeping paralysis, but that is often very slow."

"There is no hope of recovery, not even of partial recovery, doctor?"

"God knows I wish there were; that's one of the hardest parts of a doctor's life, the being unable to more than patch up a magnificent frame like yours."

"There was a rabbit once, half-killed and quivering—we knocked it on the head and put it out of its pain; we didn't leave it in its misery, we didn't feed it to prolong the anguish. And the very horse which fell upon me, whose legs were broken, was shot that very hour; it wasn't left to linger. Man is less cruel than God. Man understands—God does not."

"Hush!" said the doctor, gently. He was a man of great reverence of thought and feeling.

"You have something to comfort you," he added, after a pause; "there is your wife. Some men in your condition are left to hired nurses. I never saw anyone so eager to find new ways of cheering you. She was asking me to-day about chess; she wishes me to teach her the game."

Evelyn Godfrey came in at that moment, a beautiful woman with a singularly young, girlish face and an extraordinary expression of vitality. She was pale, with a soft, creamy paleness, and had black eyebrows and intensely gray, black-fringed eyes.

She waited till the doctor had gone and then knelt down and stroked his hand.

"I was thought an idle man, wasn't I, Lyn?" he said, softly, smiling at her—oh, what a smile it was!—"but I made a business of sport and active games; there was no season of the year when time hung heavy on my hands. There was hunting in the winter and early spring, fly fishing in May, grouse shooting in August, partridge and pheasant shooting afterward, and between whiles golf."

"Doesn't it hurt you to talk about it?" said Lyn, with a break in her voice.

"No—it's the only comfort I have. I never knew I had such a strong imagination. I shut my eyes and see the very scenes where I have been so happy—the golf links, the meet at the cross-roads, the moor, the covers—but sometimes all the pictures run into one another like a kaleidoscope."

"Shall I read to you?" said Lyn, gently.

"No—talk to me. You're a good woman, Lyn, aren't you?"

"I don't know," she answered, tremulously. "I was a very happy woman—I'll last spring."

"Do you know what I said to the doctor?"

She shook her head.

"I spoke of a rabbit that had been wounded to death, whose condition was hopeless. I said if a man saw that animal he would immediately put it out of its pain; he would be thought a brute if he didn't. The mere brutes are better off than they're not allowed to live when existence means torture. And yet the two cases can't be compared for suffering; the brute has a certain amount of physical pain, but that's all; it has no imagination to paint pictures of never-to-be-had again delight, no highly-strung nerves to increase its agony tenfold."

"But the mere brute isn't taken care of, nursed tenderly," said Lyn.

"That's only a refinement of cruelty when there's no hope. Little woman," he went on, gravely looking at her with very kind eyes, "you married a strong man, fond of sport, full of the joy of living, to whom life meant health and strength and a roaring good time; this cripple lying on a stretcher is really a stranger to you."

"Oh, don't say that," she cried, imploringly, stretching out her hands.

"It must be true. I'm a stranger to myself. I can't imagine myself chained to this stretcher, unable to move without pain. It's not Will Godfrey who is lying here—no, Will Godfrey is the man I think about in my dreams, leaping the ditches on a chill spring morning, or marching over the grouse moors with a gun—not this corpse of a man dead to everything he loved."

"But am I nothing to you?" sobbed poor Lyn, who felt that her cup of anguish was indeed full.

"I'm not, so to say, a good man," Will went on, dreamily. "Church-going bored me, and that's the truth. I went because you liked it, darling, and because it was the right thing for the squire at Hall to do, and all that, but I was profoundly bored. I've nothing to cheer me now. I mean nothing irreverent, though perhaps it does not bear speaking about, but if I thought I was going anywhere where they'd understand—if I was going to a fellow who would be sorry for me, and make me happy in a way that I care about—if I might even go on dreaming about the sport; things are deucedly real in a dream, Lyn. I vow last night I saw the meet clear and distinct—the bare trees and the hedges standing out against a yellowish sky—and I was coming up with the rest, tearing, galloping in a mad sort of way—and it was real, Lyn, was much more than this."

At that moment the two were interrupted by the entrance of Priscilla Stainforth, Will's aunt, his mother's sister. She was a terrible woman, with a genius for administering spiritual consolation to her relations and friends at supreme moments in their lives.

With the best of motives, she made herself extremely objectionable, and in times of trouble and difficulty was avoided like the plague. She had called very often for the purpose of seeing Will, but had been refused admission. On the present occasion she entered the bedroom uninvited and advanced to the couch.

There had been no time to make any preparations for her arrival. The table was strewn with papers of a sporting character, a yellow-backed novel lay on the pillow.

"Will, I could not restrain myself; I was obliged to come," she said, with an almost piteous earnestness. "You are my own sister's child. Could I ever forgive myself if I neglected my duty toward you at such a time? You have led a selfish, pleasure-seeking life, but it's not too late to seek for mercy." She paused and looked at Evelyn. "Where is your Bible?" she said, sorrowfully. "I see sporting papers in profusion, but not the one book which will give your husband comfort. The river of death is very near, Will," she went on solemnly; "it flows at the bottom of the valley. Soon you will be at the margin. I hear the time is prolonged in which to prepare for the crossing. I beseech you to use it well."

"Go away, Aunt Priscilla," said Evelyn, fiercely. "Go away—leave him to me. Will do you remember father?"

Will looked at his wife, and his face lighted up.

"He was a good man, a saint upon earth. There's no one could throw a stone at father. I am the youngest and quite different from all the rest, and people said I was fast because I liked hunting and sports of all kinds, and some one spoke to father and said that it was a scandal that an Evangelical clergyman's daughter should care for such things. And father—" Evelyn's voice broke—"he took me into his study—I was just 17 then—and he made me tell him just how I felt and he said I had my grandfather's blood in my veins. (Grandfather had lived in the bush, and that was where father was born.) And father said it would be his duty to stifle all the desires and instincts which were mine by nature, and he saved up and bought me a horse, and as you know, I used to go to the meets, and it was there I met you, Will."

She paused a moment, out of breath, trying to choose the right words for the many thoughts which crowded in.

"I want to try to remember what father said—the very words; they were something like this: He said he could understand because he was my father, and that was why God understood. He knows all about us through and through, and He wishes us to be our best selves, and as we are, you are a sportsman and an outdoor man, and He cares for you like that and He'll make you happy in your own way, not in some one else's way. And you don't want any teaching about some things. You don't want to be trained not to be cruel or to give needless pain. You're a sportsman every inch of you, and there'll be something for you to do—I swear it; you may be taught other things, but you'll have that. You won't have crushed out of you what makes you yourself. You are not responsible any more than I am responsible. He cares. He understands."

After that Will lay quite still with his eyes half closed. In a few minutes he was fast asleep, breathing regularly like a child. It was evidently a happy slumber. He was dreaming, and the dream was vivid and intensely real. His lips were curved in an almost joyful smile.

After a short interval he began to speak.

"The mare is fresh to-day, Evelyn," he murmured in his sleep. "This is our first ride together since my accident. Oh, it's good to be well!"

"Yes," she answered, in a low, clear voice, which had a ring of laughter in it, "it's good to be riding again, you and I on the Black Princess and on the Star."

But the radiant look vanished, a shadow crossed her husband's face like the wing of a dark cloud. His Aunt Priscilla's words were evidently haunting him.

"The river," he murmured, in a distressed tone of voice, "I'm close to it now."

"Leap it," she cried, suddenly. "You can do it, I'm certain. Why, I could do it, Will!"

Only for an instant did Will hesitate. Then his expression changed to a joyous ecstasy of resolve.

"By Jove! I'll have a try, Lyn," he whispered, still in his sleep.

He raised his head with eager expectancy, his left hand was outstretched, grasping invisible reins.

His pulse gave one tremendous bound. It was the last. His head fell quietly back—his left hand relaxed its hold. His lips still smiled! It was a smile of triumph.

Will Godfrey had leaped—London Onlooker.

Rev. Carlisle P. B. Martin, L. L. D.

Of Waverly, Tex., writes: "Of a morning, when first arising, I often find a troublesome collection of phlegm which produces a cough and is very hard to dislodge; but a small quantity of Ballard's Horehound Syrup will at once dislodge it, and the trouble is over. I know of no medicine that is equal to it, and it is so pleasant to take, I can most cordially recommend it to all persons who are troubled with a cough or lung trouble." Sold by Cook & Higgins.

Officers W. H. Nixon's bloodhounds played a star part in the capture of Sandy Bellington, the negro in jail on a charge of stealing $7
from Wm. Alexander on the other night.
The leader of the dogs took the trail at Mr. E. M. Flack's cabin, where Alexander lived, and went straight to Mr. W. T. Tandy's back gate. When let in the gate he went up the steps leading to Bellington's room. Alexander claimed to have lost seven silver dollars. Five silver dollars and forty cents in change was found in Bellington's room and he had 75 cents in his pockets. He was held over.

The Difference.

The Nashville American of last Tuesday reported the sale of $14,000 worth of Clarksville 4 per cent city bonds at 94. Hopkinsville city bonds are worth a premium. The two places have about the same population and this comparison may be a little odious to our neighbor, who is always boasting of her superiority over the "Pearl of the Pennyrite." However, we extend the right hand of friendship
to our worthy rival and hope she may soon be able to make a better showing of her prosperity.

The City Bank will move back into its old stand, which has been made new, in a few days and it is said the Bank of Hopkinsville will at once vacate its building, moving into the one the City Bank has been occupying temporarily, and work will begin right away on the bank building and when the repairs are completed
no banking institution in the State will have any handsomer quarters
than the Bank of Hopkinsville.

STATE LAW

Appealed to By Nashville
Home Telephone Company.

IGNORES A FRANCHISE

Representative Says Work
of Installing System Will Begin This Year.

An officer of the Nashville Home
Telephone Company on Saturday
made the positive statement that that company would begin the installation of a telephone system in Nashville during the present year, and that in the central part of the city its wires would be put in the same excavation with the other wires of the city. It had made persistent efforts to secure a franchise
from the city, but both the bills granting it a franchise, which were introduced in the City Council, were rejected. The company desired to treat the Council with due deference by pursuing the course commonly pursued by companies proposing to establish utilities, such as a telephone plant, in the city, and, therefore, applied to it for a franchise, or rather asked to submit the question of granting it a franchise to the qualified voters of the city.

Now that its efforts to secure a franchise from the Council by legiti-mate means had proved unavailing
it proposed to establish a telephone plant in Nashville without further dickering with the Council, and within a period of two years it expected to install 6,000 telephones in this city. The company considered it had a legal right to install a telephone plant in Nashville and it believed that no person, natural or artificial, could legally prevent it from accomplishing its purpose.

It is believed the company proposes to install a plant in Nashville
under the law passed by the Legislature in 1885, which confers on telephone companies a right to construct, operate and maintain telephone lines
"along and over the public highways
and streets of the cities and towns of this State, or across and under the waters, and over any lands or public works belonging to this State, and on and over the lands of private individuals, and, upon,
along and parallel to any of the rail roads or turnpikes of this State, and on and over the bridges, trestles or structures of said railroads." It is said that already twenty-two telephone exchanges are operated in towns of Tennessee under this law.

hose. This outfit has threshed less than thirty thousand bushels of wheat and is as good as new. See,
J. Y. Owsley or E. B. Long.

Last Sad Rites.

The funeral services of the late Dr. William M. Hill were largely attended last Tuesday afternoon.
Rev. H. D. Smith, at the request of Dr. Hill's short time before his death, was assisted by Dr. W. L. Nourse.
The floral offerings were many and beautiful, including one from the Southern Homeopathic Association.
The lamented physician was born in 1829.

Grass Fire.

A fire alarm was turned in early last Monday night. Sparks from the engine of a passing train had set the grass on fire in a field belonging to Mr. John B. Trice. The fire was put out after a hard fight. Mr. Trice, in his excitement, ran into a rock
pile and had a pretty severe fall.

(A cheroot is a cigar made without the head)

The fragrant filler of the Old Virginia Cheroot is blended from short leaves and selected clippings, of fine domestic leaf,—developed and refined by a long process before they reach the factory.

There is only one way that such tobacco can be worked up into cheroots at the price of 5 cents for 3.

—And that one way is the modern systematic method which produces Old Virginia Cheroots—a million of them every day—under the perfect system of the biggest, best-equipped, cleanest cigar-factory in the world.

OPERA HOUSE DIVIDEND PAYING Oil and Mining Stocks,

Other high grade 6 per cent. guaranteed interest preferred stocks and bonds for sale. OSAGE OILS: Well No. 11, Lease 67, has been brought in during the month as an oil well equal to any on the lease and is now a good producer. Well No. 12, Lease 67, has been drilled and is flowing well.
This makes 12 wells (Independent of No. 12) on lease 67, owned by the four Companies, drilled without a single "dry hole."

The four Oil Companies owning the above wells have returned to stock holders during the year its monthly dividends, the sum of $20,000, against an actual investment in property and development of approximately $60,000, with a handsome surplus yet remaining in the profit fund for extra dividends, subject to the action of the stockholders at their annual meeting, to be held in January.

Withdrawal of all stocks of the four Companies have been entirely withdrawn from the market. An announcement will probably be made no later than January 15, of the entire withdrawal from the market of the stock of the Interstate Oil & Gas Corporation, which will begin discussions in January at the same rate as the other four Oil Companies. This Company has demonstrated by its four wells already brought in that it has an earning capacity, with development, equal if not in excess of the four Oil Companies first operating in the Harrington District, and it has a surplus in its profit fund of practically $100,000 at the present time available for dividends. Any customer desiring to secure this stock will have to send in their subscription prior to the date of its withdrawal.

The Interstate Oil & Gas Corporation, now has in its profit fund approximately $3,000,000 against an investment in the property and development of some of less than $2,000,000, which is a remarkable record for the Oil & Gas properties for 1905.

AMUSEMENTS.

The Cleveland Ladies Orchestra,
which will appear at the Tabernacle
this evening is a strong combination.
There is not a poor member in the organization and the orchestra is recommended in the strongest terms,
the members being artists of rare ability. Read what the Grand Rapids Y. M. C. A. Educational Committee has to say of them:

"We are pleased to report that we had a very pleasant evening with
the Cleveland Ladies' Orchestra.
You certainly have a strong combination here. There is not a poor member in the organization. Mr.
Metzdorf is a hard worker and the people appreciate the results of his efforts. Miss Johnson and Miss Parsons are certainly artists. You need have no hesitation in recommending them in the strongest terms to any one wanting a good attraction for next season. Our people were more than pleased with the presentation
last night."

Performance begins at 8 o'clock.

"Babes in Toyland"

"Babes in Toyland" will be the attraction at Holland's Opera House, Feb. 5. Concerning the production at Sioux City recently, the Tribune
says:

"Two performances of 'Babes in Toyland' was given at the New Grand Saturday to large audiences.
The production is unusually rich in good music and in the main this was creditably given. The lines have many laughs in them and the lyrics are among the cleverest to be found in any of the musical pieces. The song 'I Can't Do the Sum' went with special 'go' and the life insurance stanza was decidedly pat. The scenic offering is attractive and there is much to rivet the attention of the children while the big folks are enjoying other efforts a little more pretentious. After 'The Forbidden Land,' 'The Liberty Bells' and
'The Royal Chef' in one week,
'Babes in Toyland' carried us (comparatively) well into 'Joyland.'"
Arthur Conrad Alan and Marie Fanchonetti as Jane are genuinely good, Grace Hazard is dainty and winsome as Contrary Mary, and Bud Ross, the detective, is a provoker of considerable mirth."

A Week's Engagement.

Kennedy Players, a first class repertoire company, will hold the boards at Holland's Opera House all next week. A different play will be presented each night at popular prices 10, 20 and 30 cents. On Monday, the opening night, a lady will be admitted free with each reserve seat ticket, provided tickets are purchased before 6 p. m. Monday.
The company is playing at Bowling Green this week to crowded houses.

25c For Children.

School Children will be admitted to the Tabernacle tonight at 25c.

Our 37th Semi-Annual Clearance Sale

BEGINS

Friday, January 26th.

The mere announcement is enough for the hundreds and hundreds of people who have been attending these sales of ours during the past 18 years. They know almost as well as we do what to expect. They know it means about 1-4 to 1-3 and in some instances 1-2 off the regular prices on Men's, Boy's and Children's Clothing.

- 1-4 to 1-2 off on Men's Furnishings,
- 1-4 to 1-3 off on all Underwear,
- 1-4 off on Men's and Boy's Hats,
- 1-3 to 1-2 off on all Ladies' & Children's Suits & Cloaks,
- 1-4 to 1-3 off on all Furs,
- 1-2 to 2-3 off on all Millinery,
- 1-4 to 1-3 off on Dress Goods.
- Big Cuts on Staple Dry Goods,
- 1-4 off on Entire Stock of Lace Curtains,
- 1-4 off Entire Stock of Ladies' Corsets,
- 1-4 off Entire Stock of Men's, Women's and Children's Hosiery,

Liberal Cuts on Men's, Women's and Children's Sample Shoes and broken lots.

Besides all the Above

There will be quantities of Odds and Ends in every department at mere fractional parts of original prices. Best of all, the people know that our cut sales are on the SQUARE, and when we say we are going to have a cut sale there is no juggling with the price tickets.

A double benefit will accrue to our customers and friends in this sale—they will not only get the benefit of liberal reductions from our regular low prices that have obtained all this season, but they will also reap a large benefit by reason of the heavy advances that have been going on in every line of merchandise during the last few months.
